

Random Acts Foundation's Current Focus

Random and Deliberate Acts of Kindness

Acts of kindness, in the form of cash, toys and educational supplies, will be administered to women, men and children throughout rural communities and villages to brighten their day or reward deserving volunteers for their efforts to teach others.

An Ambulance for Saam Njaay

In 1996, Juanita "Busy Bee" Britton, the founder of the Random Acts Foundation of Washington, DC, spent one month in a "health hut" helping a group of women with a start-up baby-weighing and maternal health program in the rural village of Saam Njaay, Senegal. On her visit, ten years later, she was pleased to discover that a five room hospital had been built to replace the hut. Also, now, it has a visiting doctor and full time Registered Nurse. The clinic services over 50 surrounding villages and desperately needs an ambulance, emergency equipment and staff to service critical patients.

Village Empowerment Program

This program teaches women and girls about human rights, health and hygiene, economics and management skills. Educating and empowering them with knowledge helps the entire village and community to find peaceful, positive solutions to challenges to their communities' health, education, democratic participation, environmental protection, and overall development.

Mosquito Nets and Malaria Medicine

Malaria is an ancient disease that remains a terrible plague in over 100 countries, predominantly in Africa. The World Health Organization reports over one million, mostly children and pregnant women are especially vulnerable. Malaria awareness has been minimal until recently and now a greater number of people and organizations are getting involved with prevention and treatment.

The Random Acts Foundation of Washington, DC, (WAFWDC) was founded on three core ideologies: "It's Up to You", "A Little Goes a Long Way" and "Reaching Out to Give Back"..

They combine the lifetime experiences of giving and a compelling dream had by founder, Juanita "Busy Bee" Britton. The Foundation's overall goal is to unite people in the United States, Africa, South America and the Caribbean through the common goal of conducting random and deliberate acts of kindness. The Foundation's unique four-pronged objectives will be implemented in communities and with individuals in urban and rural area settings.

They are:

- Conducting random acts of kindness;
- Rewarding local people that volunteer and teach others to help themselves;
- Partnering with non-governmental organizations (NGOs) to fill project gaps; and
- Delivering sustainable assistance to enhance successful programs.

The Foundation is committed to working with a wide array of caring, committed and involved supporters. Our aim is to de-mystify the giving experience and to attract donors from all walks of life and every income level. All are welcome to GIVE GENEROUSLY! Thank You!

THE DREAM

Last summer Juanita Britton dreamed she was somewhere in West Africa riding in a minibus throughout the countryside. She saw a young woman balancing a basket on her head and a baby on her back. She felt drawn to the young woman and her baby and wanted to do something special. As the bus drew closer, Juanita reached out the window and handed the woman a small monetary gift. It made the young woman smile. Her gift to the woman was only in a dream!

Nine months later,
Random Acts became a reality.

In February 2007, Juanita flew to Africa, rented a small bus and began reaching out to women and children on roadsides, in villages, in schools, and to others whom she felt could use a Random Act of kindness. A crew of assistants and friends went along to document the journey.
